NEW DELHI: Only around 40 undergraduate students took admission on the first day at Ambedkar University Delhi, which has announced 100 % cut-off for four courses this year.

The university, which offers 245 seats across seven undergraduate courses, will continue admissions till July 11 under the first cut-off list. Students who have studied Commerce in Class 12 and are from outside Delhi will require a 100% score to get admission in any of the four courses - BA (Hons) with a major in English, Psychology, Sociology or Social Sciences and Humanities.

"Around 38-40 students took admission today. But it is only the first day and we still have two days to go under the first cut-off list," said Kuriakose Mamkoottam, dean (students' service).

"Many applicants might already have taken admission in DU. So we will get a clearer picture in the second list," Mamkoottam said.
