Stanzin Kunkhen

Third Year, BA(Psychology)

School of Undergraduate Studies

“Initially the Campus was in Dwarka. I didn’t like the Campus there. Now it has shifted to Kashmere Gate and I am getting a more College feel with the trees and ground. The faculty is very nice, you can always talk to them about anything. It’s a University where you have Undergraduate, Masters, PhD students so you get to interact and meet a lot of people, that is a good thing.”

Rima Kaur

2nd Year, MA Education Studies

School of Education Studies

“Ambedkar University to me is very promising. And I hope there are more new courses that take off here. I think it is some kind of revolution of sorts that is happening here. And I am really excited to see where this University is going to go in a couple of years.”

Eeshan Tiwari

2nd year, MA History

School of Liberal Studies

“It is a very interesting place. And of course the way that the courses are structured and the way that the teaching is done is very innovative and different. It is a sort of a corrective to what’s gone on in the world around us, that helps to put things in perspective.”

Vikas Dalal

PhD

School of Human Ecology

“Comparing my earlier experience of Engineering education to that of AUD, I have realised that education is much more than just lectures and laboratory demonstrations. The field exposure oriented education at AUD allows an individual to step beyond the personal context and engage with society.”

Ritika Arora

MPhil, Psycho-Social and Clinical Practice

School of Human Studies

“A wholesome place for its exciting and unusual courses and growing campus culture. And especially unique and honest as it tries to keep at its core the ethic of human-ness.”
