Brief Description of the Activity:
Sustainable travel, eco-tourism, ways in which mass travel to tourist destinations ecologically affect the places, methods through which local communities are involved in any travel venture, the ethics of traveling in an age of climate change are some of the guiding thoughts behind the workshop. As part of the Tourism Working Group meetings of G 20, the five thrust areas in connection to the 2030 sustainable development goals are Green Tourism, Digitalization, Skills, Tourism MSMEs and Destination Management. Keeping this as background and connecting it to the Urban 20 engagement group mandate of G20, namely promoting environmentally responsible behavior; the concepts which the workshop would connect are community, sustainability and entrepreneurial imaginations. This workshop with an international speaker had a keynote lecture and two sessions of the workshop engaged with some of these questions above. There is a Delhi-centric session titled Ecological/Egalitarian Travel and Destination Management: Delhi as site which looks at everyday travel, recreating heritage sites or sustainable modes of knowing the city. The second session titled Sustainable Travel, Tourism and Entrepreneurship with a focus on the local community will look into questions of entrepreneurial initiatives and ecological effects of mass tourism and recommendations for the future.
